

Each week we produce a chart book of 10 of the current positions we have in our equity portfolio. Specifically, we are looking at the positions which warrant attention, or are providing an opportunity, or need to be sold.

While the portfolios are designed to have longer-term holding periods, we understand that things do not always go the way we plan. This monitoring process keeps us focused on capital preservation and long-term returns.

HOW TO READ THE CHARTS

There are four primary components to each chart:

- The price chart is contained within the shaded area which represents 2-standard deviations above and below the short-term moving average.
- The Over Bought/Over Sold indicator is in orange at the top.
- The Support/Resistance line (green) is the longer-term moving average which also acts as a trailing stop in many cases.
- The Buy / Sell is triggered when the green line is above the red line (Buy) or vice-versa (Sell).

When the price of a position is at the top of the deviation range, overbought and on a buy signal it is generally a good time to take profits. When that positioning is reversed it is often a good time to look to add to a winning position or looking for an opportunity to exit a losing position.

With this basic tutorial let's get to the position analysis.

AAPL - Apple, Inc.

- Last week, AAPL was trading up 4.26% after revenue forecasts that topped estimates. Unfortunately, Trump hit the market with additional "tariffs" which will likely directly impact AAPL.
- AAPL is back into its previous rising wedge and on a buy signal, so we will continue to hold our position.
- We sold 20% of our stake at the May peak, and we can add to our holding either on a test of support at $190, on a sustained breakout above $210, or both.
- Stop loss is adjusted to $185

- DOV has been an excellent performer for the portfolio and we have taken profits in the company twice.
- A "sell signal" has been triggered but DOV is holding support currently at the 200-dma. We are worried about the impact of tariffs, so we will keep our stop on the remainder of the position for now.
- Stop-loss is adjusted to $87.50

- As noted previously, PPL remains our "problem child" position. Despite other utility companies performing much better, PPL has just been unable to catch a bid.
- PPL is on a sell signal currently and is working off its overbought condition. It is holding critical support which keeps us long our position for now.
- Stop loss is at $29.50

- We previously discussed adding two "agency REIT" positions to the portfolio to take advantage of a steepening yield curve as the economy slows.
- We noted the positions were too overbought previously to add to the positions, but the recent correction, and pending "buy signal," makes for a decent entry point.
- Look for NLY to close above the 50-dma to add to current holdings.
- Stop loss remains at $8.40

- DUK continues to trade in a tight consolidation range over the last several months despite the ongoing sell signal.
- With support holding, and the stock providing a defensive buffer to the portfolio, we are remaining long our position for now.
- A break above $90 should see DUK approach $100/share fairly quickly. Conversely, a break below $87 could see a quick retest of support.
- Stop is being adjusted to $83

- NSC has been another solid performer in the portfolio but has been grossly overbought for a very long time.
- We have take profits twice in the position and, provided support holds, we will look to rebuild our position at slightly lower levels.
- Hold positions for now. We are looking for a pullback to the $170/area to add back into our position.
- Stop is adjusted to $160

- If $130 continues to hold we will look to add to our position.

- Back in May, we sold down 1/2 of our XOM position on concerns about oil prices.
- With XOM now getting oversold, and to the bottom of its trading range, we are starting to become more interested in adding back to our holding.
- It is too early to make any decisions, but if the sell signal reverses, and support holds around $69, it will likely provide a decent entry opportunity.
- No stop currently.
