

HOW TO READ THE MAJOR MARKET BUY-SELL REVIEW 11-16-20 There are three primary components to each Major Market Buy/Sell chart in this RIAPro review:

- The price chart is in orange.
- The Over Bought/Over Sold indicator is in gray.
- The Buy / Sell indicator is in blue.

When the gray indicator is at the TOP of the chart, there is typically more risk and less reward available at the current time. In other words, the best time to BUY is when the short-term condition is over-sold. Likewise, when the buy/sell indicator is above the ZERO line, investments tend to work better.

With this basic tutorial, let's review the major markets.

- The sharp rally this past week took the markets back to all-time highs, which is certainly bullish heading into the end of the year.
- However, the markets are now back to more extreme short-term overbought conditions, which have repeatedly been an excellent opportunity to lift profits and rebalance risks.
- Such is likely good advice as we head into early December where Mutual Funds will have to make redemptions to meet annual distribution requirements.
- Maintain current exposures for now, but manage risk as needed.
- Short-Term Positioning: Bullish
 - Last Week: Maintaining holdings.
 - This Week: Maintaining holdings.
 - Stop-loss set at $310 for trading positions.
 - Long-Term Positioning: Bullish

- The Nasdaq is not completely overbought yet, and Technology has been underperforming over the last week. We suspect that will change as the virus continues to weigh on economic growth.
- As noted last week: "The underperformance relative to the S&P 500 is likely going to provide another good trading opportunity soon."
- Markets are back to short-term overbought, so use corrections to add to holdings.
- Hold current positions and honor stop losses.
- Short-Term Positioning: Bullish

- The rally in oil finally came. Oil is not overbought yet, and energy stocks have finally started to outperform short-term.
- It is too early to jump in, but a bottom may be forming for a reasonable opportunity. We are still holding our small energy exposure, but we are building a shopping list if this rally can build support and hold.

- After previously adding to our positions in GDX and IAU, we continue to hold our positions.
- Last week, gold and gold miners pulled back with the short-term rotation to value. Such is very likely a very limited trade and we will see a reversal back to concerns about the economy next week.
- We are going to look to add to our positions on this weakness that holds support.
- We believe downside risk is relatively limited, but as always, maintain stops.
- Short-Term Positioning: Bullish
 - Last week: No changes this week.
 - This week: No changes this week.
 - Stop-loss adjusted to $165
 - Long-Term Positioning: Bullish

Bonds (Inverse Of Interest Rates)

- Bonds remain at historically very extreme oversold conditions. They bounced nicely last week but are not trading correctly just yet.
- The upside potential in bonds from the current oversold condition is good and will coincide with a larger stock correction.
- The "sell signal" is now at levels that have typically preceded more massive rallies in bonds, so continue to maintain exposure.
- Investors can add to Treasuries at current levels. Post-election, we will take our duration much further out.
- Short-Term Positioning: Neutral
 - Last Week: Hold positions.
 - This Week: We increased TLT by 5% on Wednesday.
 - Stop-loss moved up to $157.50
 - Long-Term Positioning: Bullish

- The dollar rally stumbled last week and retested previous lows.
- However, the bottoming process continued, and the dollar rallied back into the uptrend channel it has been building.
- A breakout above that trend and the dollar rally will be on. Such will be bad for international stocks and commodities, so watch the dollar closely.
- Traders can continue to build a position here with a stop loss at recent lows.
- Stop-loss adjusted to $92.
